"Pushing the Limits" - Change

On September 19 at 6:00, our "Pushing the Limits" group will explore the theme of "Change" by discussing the novel "Zeitoun" by Dave Eggers, which deals with one family's response to Hurricane Katrina. Anyone can still join in for the program, even without reading the book, since these programs encourage adults in the community to consider their own resiliency and adaptation strategies in the face of climate change and severe weather events.

Program discussions are facilitated by our science partner from the National Weather Service - Weather Forecast Office in Memphis, Gary Woodall, and will be based on the recommended reading of popular fiction and the viewing of a short (7-10 minutes) feature-film quality video produced specifically for the project. Each video is what one might call, "real people, real stories, real science," and provides a look at an individual or family using scientific ideas, principles, or technologies to push limits in their own lives when faced with extreme weather events. The stories presented in these videos have been chosen for their general appeal. For each program, a book has been selected by our library that connects to the program theme.

Brain HQ given by Pemiscot Initiative Network

The Pemiscot Initiative Network (PIN) recently donated the cost of award-winning Brain HQ to Caruthersville Public Library to aid in their ongoing plan to help make Caruthersville a healthy community.

50 years ago, going to the gym wasn't something the average person did. Now, it seems, everyone has a gym membership, or finds another way to exercise regularly. That's because a revolution took place in the 1980s and 1990s: we all learned how important physical exercise was for our overall health and well-being.

Brain fitness is the next step in that revolution. Just as you can exercise your abs, delts, and quads, you can exercise your memory, attention, and more. As with physical exercise, brain exercise can help you test your brain and improve your performance to feel your best. This is especially important for adults, as we age, but can also help with ADD, ADHD, and focus issues for everyone.

When it comes to brain fitness training, BrainHQ is best in class. Built by a team of top neuroscientists, with exercises proven in dozens of published studies to make real and lasting improvements in brain function, BrainHQ is your personal brain gym. Would you like to train your brain? You can try BrainHQ for free right now on the "Resources" page on our website at cville.lib.mo.us – all you need is your library card number and library password and you can set up an account to use Brain HQ in the comfort of your home.
